Individuals in need of an immediate assessment, include:

1. People actively using opioids and people who are actively using alcohol and/or benzodiazepines in a pattern (frequency, amount and duration) that is likely to require a medical assessment for withdrawal. If the screen is positive, the individual should be seen on the same day by clinical/medical staff to assess the severity of potential withdrawal and identify who can initiate treatment.
2. Pregnant IV user
3. Pregnant users
4. IV users
5. Patients at risk of losing custody of their child
6. Patients recently released from the criminal justice system

If the screen is negative for urgent or emergency need – the individual and/or family member should be given an intake appointment within 72 hours.
